Digital Curation is not just about collecting links. It needs to be about contextualising specific collections and providing added value.

Getting Started:

- Search a range of curation platforms for existing collections
- Identify ‘good’, ‘expert’ curators to follow
- Create links to existing collections of other curators that match your needs
- Add value – annotations and tagging are essential
- Make it part of your daily practice
- Share – Make your curations publicly available
Digital Curators often use the following to discover content:

- Twitter - http://twitter.com
- Facebook - http://facebook.com
- Feedly - http://feedly.com
- Flipboard - https://flipboard.com
- Stumble Upon - https://www.stumbleupon.com
Once curated you will want to share your efforts with the world on networking sites or use plug-ins and widgets to directly publish curated content onto a blog:

- Google+ - https://plus.google.com
- LinkedIn – http://www.linkedin.com
- Tumblr – https://tumblr.com
