

Murray Hawkins

Biography

Murray is the leader of Scholastic National Sales team and previously lead the companies Book Fairs Division. In this with Book Fairs, Murray and his team annually helped schools run over 6000 book events that supported children on their reading journey.

As Head of Sales, Murray is focused on partnering with customers to develop programs and initiatives that excite children and families about reading and reading more. He works closely with the publishing and product teams who develop and publish Scholastic's awesome catalogue of children's books.

Murray has a true passion for children's literature and is one of the most well-read members of children's books within the company. He takes pride in working for Scholastic and in knowing that in doing so he is working towards growing children to become lifelong readers.

